Different, Yet Very Similar "There's about as much diff'rence in we men folks as there is in tomato plants," remarked Willard Hobbs, spropos of a story which had been told by one of the group gathered round the postoffice stove,
"an when Pve said that I dunno's I can an when I've said that I dunno's I can say any more, for of all onsartin things to jedge an experiment with tomato plants beats anythin ever I knew!"

"How is it about women folks!" inquired one of the men after the smile called forth by this remote reference to Willard's unfortunate tomato speculation had subsided.

o' mine over to Edgetown that I boarded with when I was workin in the straw fac-t'ry," replied Willard. "They was about as various as anythin ever I see, though there was p'ints about 'em that was some "I had to be up an off early in the morn-in, an them two gals used t' git my 6 o'clock breakfast for me, ture an turn about, a

"Well, Anastashy's week I'd hear her creakin open her door soft as she could somewher's in the neighborhood o' fourthutty, an stealin down the back stairs, an then I'd drop off agin. An when I got up an down to the kitchen at 6 o'clock she'd be setting the things on the table. 'Slow an sure' was her motter, an she was allus prompt on the tick o' 6.

"But Luciady's week 'twas another tune, I can tell ye. About five thutty-five her door would bust open with a bang, an Lucindy would clatter down them back stairs like all possessed. Then I'd hear the stove covers all comin off to once appearantly, an things would be slammin round gen'rally, with Lucindy in the midst of 'em. Any reasonin man would know better'n to expect to have bis breakfast on time with sech goin's on an only 25 minutes to git sech goin's on an only 25 minutes to git everythin done."

"What time 'd she could be to set things before yet" inquired one of the group as Willard stopped, with no apparent intention of saying more.
"Oh, 6 o'clock sharp," replied Willard, with a carefully elaborated yawn. "That was one o' the p'ints where the similarity o' them gals come in. Now, with tomator plants it's diff'rent,"-Youth's Companion.

A Dog Story. The Boston Transcript tells the following dog story: A friend during his boyhood days in New Hampshire owned a big dog. Some carpenters were at work on a new libuse approached by a long hill from his home. The distance by road around the hill was a full mile. Each noon the dog was sent un to the new house with a the hill was a full mile. Each noon the dog was sent up to the new house with a jug of water. One warm day he set down the jug for a rest, and being unable to recover it it rolled to the foot of the hill. He looked at it awhile, picked it up and trotted off around the hill this time, and never afterward could he be persuaded to carry the jug by the short route.

Too Happy For Comfort, "I think that perhaps the most cheerful man I ever knew," said Colonel Calliper, "was my friend Stephen Gikilin of Stork-"was my friend Stephen Giklin of Stork-ville Center, Vt. He always took a cheer-ful view of things, and he had a sense of humor that offrimes enabled him to ex-tract fun from situations in which others found only gloom. Indeed his sense of humor was rather keener than one would desire, for sometimes it sprung things on him most unexpectedly. It went skir-nishing on its own account and reached of humor was as abounding as ever. It would greet him sometimes with a smile which seemed to say: What! We grow old? Well!' And then they'd both laugh as they walked along together.

"Stephen's sense of humor cost him some friends and made him some trouble. It made him laugh sometimes at most in-opportune moments. He was himself as much disturbed by this as anybody, but not for louing for he was so buoyant that nothing could keep him down. He passed through life a sturdy, prosperous man, whose perfect enjoyment was marred only formula, "As one bohemian to another," you may make up your mind that that man means an assault upon the other man's pocketbook, and that if the assault is successful the damages will never be repaired. That man is not a bohemian, he Hitherto the process in brushmaking of bunching the bristles and drawing them into the holes has been performed by hand. A machine of peculiar ingenuity has just been invented for this purpose, the bristles being contained in a hopper, where they rest horizontally at right angles on the top of a disk, which by means of a treadle is caused to partially rotate, first in one di-rection and then in the other. The disk rection and then in the other. The disk has a notch formed in its periphery, and as the notch pusses under the bristles some of them enter into the notch; before the disk returns, a plate joined to the disk is moved and closes the mouth of the notch, the disk then comes back and carries away the tuft of bristle retained in the notch to a position of bristle retained in the notch to a position from which it can readily be taken by the fingers of the operative.

The whole arrangement is that of a pecker or gripper and can be regulated according to the quantity of the material required to fill the hole, the operative passing the wire through the hole by means of a special needle fitted to a clamp which is held in the right hand, the loop being automatically formed. Into this loop the operator passes the tuft of bristles, pulls the wire and thus draws the bristles into the hole.—New York Sun.
